

IT Employment Continues to Move Sideways in September

While the overall job growth exceeded expectations with the addition of 254,000 jobs in September, IT employment remained effectively flat with a dip of 0.03%, or a loss of 1,700 jobs, month-over-month, according to TechServe Alliance, the national trade association for the IT & Engineering Staffing and Solutions Industry. On a yearly basis, the IT job market contracted by 0.28%, with a loss of 15,100 positions. Employment in Engineering was up 0.92%, adding 25,800 jobs during the same period.

“While the broader economy showed resilience in September with stronger-than-expected job growth, IT employment remains largely stuck in place,” said Mark Roberts, CEO of TechServe

Alliance. “We have seen this all year. After a general downward trajectory during latter half of 2022 and all of 2023, IT employment in 2024 has been effectively flat. Month-to-month movement up or down has been barely perceptible,” added Roberts. “With the cloud of uncertainty beginning to lift on the economy and with the election soon to be in the rear-view mirror, we are optimistic that 2025 will bring an environment more conducive to growth and investment in IT,” Roberts concluded.

Technical note: TechServe Alliance's IT Employment Index and Engineering Employment Index are the first specific measurements of IT and engineering employment. These unique measurements of total IT and engineering employment are created monthly by studying the ongoing staffing patterns of a dozen IT and computer related occupations in 22 industries and industry sectors employing significant numbers of IT workers and nearly two dozen engineering occupations in 30 select industries and industry sectors employing significant numbers of engineering workers. Both the monthly IT Employment and Engineering Employment Indices are based on U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) data, which is subject to monthly revisions, and is revised accordingly. Both indices are also subject to periodic revisions and annual revisions / benchmarking that includes revisions to several years of employment data, which also may incorporate new occupational definitions. Both indices were revised / benchmarked going back several years released on February 2, 2024. In addition, both indices are subject to minor revisions to March and April data of this year. The next major revision will be released and published in February 2025.
